The March of the German Slaves
It Will Touch Us, If They Win

For the second time in 10 months the German war machine has lashed out and apparently won a war before it has hardly begun. It smashed France in two weeks. Today's dispatches hint that the Balkans' defenses have been smashed in four days. . . . But this is a land campaign conducted by the world's most formidable military machine against several small countries. Either we have been overly optimistic for the brave Greeks or it is too early yet to see the full effect of British sea power and munitions.

The German-British duel for power is constantly reminding us of what Bismarck, German leader of two generations ago, said about Russia and England one time when those two countries threatened to fight each other.

"I want to see this fight," said Bismarck. "I never saw a fight between an elephant and a whale." And so it goes. Germany seems invincible on land, Britain invincible on the sea.

Summarizing today's Associated Press reports, what happened overnight in the Balkans was this:

For three days the German motorized columns had been struggling over mountain passes and along goat trails. But at dawn Wednesday they reached the good roads down the Struma and Vardar valleys—and in six hours crushed the Greek defenses.

War never has moved at such speed before.

The episode may be decisive for the Balkans, but not for the world at large. Not for Great Britain, Not for the United States.

It might be well to consider for a moment what our own aims would probably be in this world struggle which we are already so close to.

A great deal of language is being wasted in talk about American crusading for democracy, liberty, ideals in Europe—when as a matter of fact we are more interested in preserving these things for ourselves than in trying to restore them to foreigners who have either lost them or perhaps never did have them in the first place.

We understand this question when we study the facts behind this amazing machine that Herr Hitler has built. Americans who saw Hitler take a bankrupt country and construct it into a 90-billion-dollar war machine known now that he did it on slave labor.

Modern engineers look at the Pyramids of Egypt and but for their knowledge of history they wouldn't understand how the ancients either built or financed them. But history tells us that Egypt was the greatest master of slaves in all the ancient world.

The military performance of Germany today, therefore, should be less surprising than it actually is; for with the exception of the totalitarian States slavery has gone out of fashion, and men work for wages and spend them on families and homes.

But if the totalitarian idea should emerge victorious from this war every American knows that the march of slave labor across the face of the world would somehow, somehow touch the lives of every man, woman and child in our own country.

Don't think of it necessarily in terms of Germany conquering the United States.

But think of it like this: Even with England and the United States safely armed against invasion of themselves, a world so dominated by slave labor—regimented men working for the State instead of family—that free labor in free countries would get little or no wages because their goods could not be sold outside their own boundaries.

It is such a monstrous threat in the future that we must reckon with on Europe's battle-fields today.

British Crews to Take Charge of Them Here

Announcement
Made by Stephen
Early, White House Secretary

WASHINGTON (AP)—The release of 10 Coast Guard cutters to the British was announced at the White House Wednesday.

Stephen Early, presidential press secretary, told reporters the coast guard vessels had not yet been transferred to the British but were being prepared for the transfer under terms of the lease-lend bill.

He said he preferred not to disclose the names of the cutters but said they were built from 1928 to 1932.

No commercial ships or naval craft are involved in the deal, Early said. Presumably, he added, the cutters would be turned over to British crews on this side of the Atlantic as was done in the case of 50 destroyers released to Britain in exchange for defense base sites.

Names Studied in Contest

Plaintiff Expected to Rest Case
Thursday

Several witnesses were called to identify voters here Wednesday morning as the Hempstead county judge election contest case, between Fred A. Luck, incumbent and John L. Wilson, contestant, entered its third day.

Stuart Monroe and Crit Stuart, lifelong residents of Hempstead county were questioned as to the identity of several residents of Washington. Chester Hunt and Elmer Jones also testified that their initials were C. W. Hunt and S. E. Jones as listed on the official poll tax list.

Several more witnesses will be heard Thursday morning in an effort to clear up the identity of voters challenged who listed their names one way on the ballot and another way on the poll tax list. After these witnesses are heard attorneys for John L. Wilson are expected to rest his case and call for a check of the signed ballots.

The court then adjourned until Thursday morning.

It is estimated that Britain annually are swindled out of $20,000,000 by bogus charity collectors.

Nolan Cargile in First Solo as Air Corps Cadet

Nolan B. Cargile, Hope boy enrolled in the freshman class of the California Aero Training School at Ontario, Calif., has made his first solo flight in training for an Army Air Corps pilot.

Nolan, Hope High School graduate who attended Oklahoma Military Academy and Tulsa university before entering air service training, wrote his mother at 308 South Shover street, Hope, the following account of his first solo flight.

"Well, I finally did it—my greatest thrill and achievement since I walked off of a stage with my first successful trombone solo behind me—I made my initial solo yesterday (March 10) at 3:25 o'clock.

"I had eight hours when I made my solo. I would have soloed earlier but after 6 hours 45 minutes of flying under one instructor they gave me another one and I had to spend the next hour and a half showing him whether I had learned anything

Nazis' Armored Panzer Divisions Roll Through Balkans to Aegean Sea; Greek Army of 300,000 Surrenders; and All Yugoslavia Is Surrounded

British Hold
Ships Ready for Flight From Greek
Ports

BERNE, Switzerland (AP)—Britain and her Greek and Yugoslav allies appeared Wednesday night to have lost in four days their major defenses in the Balkans.

Salonica, great natural fortress of the Aegean throughout history, fell to the Nazis Wednesday.

Greece's eastern army, estimated to number 300,000 before hostilities began, surrendered en masse.

The German blitzkrieg armies fighting westward over mountain terrain were within 15 miles of a junction with the Italian forces in Albania.

Nis and Skopje, vital Yugoslav military and railway centers were in German hands.

Ready for Fight

The Rome and Berlin radios declared that the scheduled sailings of British transports in Piraeus, port of Athens, had been canceled.

The radio said Greek military circles considered the order a precautionary measure for disembarkation of British troops. This presumably would mean "a Balkan Dunkerque" for the British.

To some observers these facts signified that the Balkan war might be almost over although it was not known how well Britain and Greece have prepared other positions to which they were retreating Wednesday night.

Yugoslavia Gone

It was almost certain however, that Yugoslavia from now on is fighting on her own unless she can break through the German line strung out across southern Serbia dividing her from the British and Greeks.

To reach their goals in eastern Yugoslavia the German motorized column sped over roads little better than goat trails. The Italians meanwhile had pressed eastward into Yugoslavia to take the town of Grad.

There seemed to be little chance that the Yugoslav forces, reported to be somewhat disorganized, could successfully retreat.

Suez Canal Is Goal of Axis Campaign

ROME (AP)—The British controlled Suez Canal is the Axis goal after Yugoslavia and Greece, the officially-controlled newspaper Popolo di Roma said Wednesday in a dispatch from Berlin.

(To reach the Suez Canal Axis forces would have to drive through Turkey, which was reported in Ankara to be watching the Balkan war enviously and viewing the situation "as not dangerous yet.")

Popolo di Roma's dispatch said that instead of a static front in the Balkans, as in the World War, the Balkans constitute "a dynamic offensive theater intended to strike British power directly in one of its vital centers, the strategic Mediterranean-African-Asiatic sector which culminates at Suez."

Mechanized Forces Make "Another France" of Balkan Campaign

BERLIN (AP)—The powerful Nazi army has smashed its way clear down the Vardar river valley, captured Salonika and forced the surrender of the whole eastern wing of the Greek army between Salonika and the Turkish border, the high command announced Wednesday.

Other German forces have taken Skopje and Veles, Yugoslavia, and are advancing rapidly toward the Albanian border and junction with Italian forces after taking Tetovo and Prilep, the high command said.

Farther north in Yugoslavia, a communique said, German armored troops captured the vital rail city of Nis while others took Maribor and crossed the Drava river.

In northeastern Greece, a communique said, panzer divisions driving south from Bulgaria captured the town of Xanthi, 30 miles northwest of the port of Kavala, and advanced from there to the shores of the Aegean sea.

Greeks Smashed

Many of the Greek soldiers who surrendered had fought desperately in the Struma river valley trying to stem the crushing German advance which broke through the expensive string of fortifications known as "the Metaxas line" after the late premier general John Metaxas.

The first official report here of the successful German advance came in a high command statement which said the armored forces had driven a wedge southward from Yugoslavia, cutting off the Yugoslavs from British or Greek reinforcements and taking more than 20,000 prisoners.

To the south, the war bulletin said, German troops drove past Lake Doiran in southeastern Yugoslavia and into Greek territory.

Mountain and infantry divisions under Field Marshal General Siegmund List, supported by dive bombers, were credited with the breakthrough into Yugoslavia and Greece.

The high command said the German drive into the Skopje region of Yugoslavia had extended more than 60 miles from the Bulgarian frontier "despite difficult mountain territory."

Six generals were said to have been among the 20,000 prisoners taken in southern Yugoslavia along with much artillery and war materials of all kinds.

A German spokesman declared that "the Serbian state is tottering after only LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill told Britain of the grave extent of Germany's smashing advance through Greece Wednesday and warned Soviet Russia the Nazi drive was heading her way.

In a war report to the House of Commons Churchill announced the Nazi troops had entered Salonika at 4 a. m.

"Up to the present the British and imperial troops have not been engaged" in the fighting in Greece, he said.

He refused to give any indication of what would be done with these troops in "the wide spread battle."

The prime minister declared there were increasing signs that Germany would push on into the wheatlands of Russia's Ukraine. He also announced the British capture of the Red Sea port of

Wars in "Peace"

In the 21 years between World War I and World War II there has never been a year when all the nations of the globe were actually at peace. A look back through the action-filled pages of history will recall these conflicts for you.

1. In what war, shortly after close of World War I, did two European nations, now close allies, engage in conflict?

2. In what war did a European nation invade an African country on whose soil battles of World War II are now being fought?

3. In what war, since 1918, did two enemies of the World War II engage in battle?

4. In what war preceding the current conflict did German and Italian troops fight side by side?

5. What two Asiatic nations have been involved in some sort of conflict intermittently during the past 10 years?

Architect's Drawing of the New $25,000 Emmet High School

Above is an architect's drawing of the proposed new $25,000 Emmet high school building as conceived by D. F. Weaver, Emmet architect.

The Emmet school district voted almost unanimously in the spring election to proceed with the construction of the new building.

The building contains a study hall with library and office connected thereto and separated by a glass partition. Three class rooms are conveniently located in conjunction with the study hall. A combination kitchen and cafeteria is provided for serving school lunches and which is convenient to the auditorium for banquet purposes. A separate room designed in living room style is provided for Womens P. T. A. or other purposes.

For athletics a combination auditorium and gymnasium has been included. The court floor is 44'x78' feet with bleacher seating capacity of 300 people. Storage space under bleachers is used for storing folding chairs for use in auditorium activities. A complete stage with large dressing rooms on either side has been provided. Under the stage and dressing rooms, two shower and dressing rooms, are included for athletics use. Other facilities such as students lockers, fountains, special storage rooms, etc., have been included.

The building construction will be Brick Veneer Type with stone and metal trim. The building, estimated to cost $25,000 is to be built by the Works Project Administration with construction to be started in the near future and completed by January 1, 1942. The present frame Gymnasium Building is to be taken down with material used for constructing a Teachers Cottage on the school grounds.

The Emmet School District operates on a strictly cash basis. The present building, to be used as a grade school, will be paid out this year. The new improvements are to be provided through funds from the State Revolving Loan on which the Annual Debt Service will be considerably less than former bonded indebtedness now paid out, which will possibly enable the district to increase the school term from eight months to a full nine months term, including an increased teaching staff.

Durbin Stars Again in Picture at Saenger Thursday, Friday

Deanna Durbin Costumes Set Fashion Trends

'Nice Girl' Depicts Romantic Loveliness of Young Deb

Staircase of style—three ages to highlight fashion news and start new trends are seen in the clever wardrobe robes originated by Vera West for Deanna Durbin, Ann Gillis and Anne Gwynne, who enact the roles of three sisters in Universal's "Nice Girl" at the Saenger theater Thursday and Friday.

On the first step is Ann Gillis, "little sister." Most treasured possession of Ann's is her party dress of aqua blue dotted swiss. Eyelet embroidered organdie forms the square yoke of the bodice which extends out to become a part of the short puff sleeves. The full flared skirt is ruffled in at the waistline with girde of the same organdie laces with narrow blue velvet ribbon which ties in bow and streamers at the front.

Romantic Loveliness
Deanna Durbin depicts the romantic loveliness of the young deb in a black taffeta evening gown with flared bouffant skirt and fitted basque waist. White organdie forms the puff sleeves.

Harrison in Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON, NEA Service Correspondent

How to Be Happy Though Wed and Working in Films

Lucie Neville is pinch-hitting for Paul Harrison, now touring army camps and defense industries.

NEA Service Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD: The newlywed Robert Prestons have decided that movies and marriage won't mix, but it's no item for the bustled-hearts columns. They're getting along fine, both under contract to Paramount, and waving to each other across the lot—when they're on the same lot, which hasn't been often in the five months of their marriage.

In that time, Preston has been on location trips for two pictures, loaned to Universal, and, just finished with "The Night of January 15th" at his home studio. He went next day to RKO for "Parachute Battalion." Mrs. Preston didn't tag along; she was busy making three pictures and, as Catherine Craig, collecting paychecks.

They haven't been in a picture together. It took considerable arranging even to get them together for a luncheon-interview, with Miss Craig due on the set of "Nothing But the Truth" and Preston going back to RKO in an hour. They didn't hold hands—just grinned and said, "Hi-yah!"

Watch That Figure, Husband
They aren't ever going to be in the same picture, either, she explained. "It might be all right if we were established, like Joan Blondell and Dick Powell; they're equally well known. Pres is being starred now and I'm just starting in pic—"

"But you're getting better roles," interrupted Preston. "Why, in this one, they even let ya talk! Say, Kay, kin I have a chocolate éclair for dessert? I haven't had one since you put me on this diet."

"What kind of sherbet do they have?" Mrs. Preston asked mildly. (He ate sherbet.) "I'm just starting in pictures and, in a way, we'd be competing. Pres would be uncomfortable if I had just a bit in a film in which he was starred, and I don't ever want to trade on his reputation. I know I stopped my agent pretty quick from introducing me as 'She's the girl who's engaged to Robert Preston.' If they didn't want me as Catherine Craig, I didn't want the job."

When she was asked whether Preston had pulled any strings to get her into his studio, she said, "I'd like to think he didn't, but I know Paramount took more care with the test than any other studio had."

"It was wonderful to have Pres test with me; he's a fine actor and gave me a lot of confidence. I knew that, by golly, if this one didn't land a job then the movies didn't want me and I'd stick to radio and the theater."

From Circus to Phi Beta Kappa
She doesn't know where Hollywood got the idea she was a schoolteacher, unless it was because she owns a Phi Beta Kappa key. (Preston is most proud of that piece of jewelry and marvels that such a smart girl as Kay would pick a dope who never got out of high school.)

Actually, she has more theatrical background than her husband. She traveled with her father's circus when she was a child, used her uncle's theater for Saturday morning productions with a neighborhood cast. At Indiana University, she was assistant to the speech instructor, won several dramatic awards.

They made the Paramount test on Monday, Nov. 4, last year. Paramount handed her a contract on Thursday, and on Friday they were married in Las Vegas. Christmas Day is the only vacation they've had together, and lately, working hours have been 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Luckily for Mrs. Preston, she says, her husband doesn't want breakfast at home.

It pleases him, though, that she's a good cook, especially because Preston, Sr., is, too. Invariably, papa-in-law asks about each dish. "Did you make this?" Even if it's drugstore ice cream, Miss Craig demurely assures him she did.

"To whom are you writing that letter?"
"To myself."
"What are you telling yourself?"
"How do I know? I won't get the letter until tomorrow."

Comment About Washington

Embassy Staff Member Writes Book on Experiences

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Title trouble: Harvey Klemmer, one-time crack reporter for the Detroit News and now one of the bright young men of our London embassy staff, is back in Washington. He first came here with Joe Kennedy, when the latter was head of the Maritime Commission. And out of that experience came Harvey's book, "Harbor Nights," which might have been subtitled "Do Not Go Down to the Sea in Ships If You're Looking for Romance and Adventure."

Harvey is home from London to report and soon will be winging back. He already has seen a heap of war, with such experiences as the afternoon when he and his wife and two daughters were having tea in the London suburb garden and were attacked by eight Stuka dive bombers. One of them was only 50 feet overhead when it leveled off and started climbing. Fortunately for the Klemmer family, all missed. Which proves that not even the Stukas can "lay their eggs in a barrel," as some of the boys claim our pilots can do.

All But a Name
It was out of this harried life, however, that Harvey found material for his new book, "They'll Never Quit," which is crawling up the non-fiction best seller lists. When Harvey first sent the manuscript over from England, it bore the title, "Murder in the Blackout." His publishers cabled that that would never do. People would think it was a mystery and curse it for its misleading name, they said. They could think of nothing else. Klemmer suggested "Blitzkrieg." That, they cabled, had been used already. So Harvey came home with no title and not even a good idea. After days of brain-cudgelling, he walked out on the street and in desperation accosted a cab driver.

"What would you like to know more than anything else about the British?" Harvey asked.

The Jehu didn't hesitate. "Will they stick?" he asked.

"Brother," Harvey almost shouted, "you have just named a book."

In his excitement and eagerness to get to his publishers, Harvey forgot to get the taxi driver's name. Now he can't even send an autographed copy to the man who gave him the title.

Flower of Suggestion
Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was holding a press conference, and the boys were doing a little informal chatting about the national defense saving stamps with which even the dime-savers will get in on financing the government's big defense bond.

"Mr. Secretary," asked one of the reporters, "don't you think there might be a chance that counterfeiters will try to work on these stamps?"

"Oh, I hardly think so," Mr. Morgenthau said. "For instance there are

WE, THE WOMEN

You Can Help Those in Trouble by Being a Good Listener

By RUTH MILLETT

We, the women of America, should resolve to consider ourselves "enlisted listeners."

All too often we pay one duty call on the woman who has lost her husband—and then shy away from her, avoiding sorrow as we would a disease.

It makes us uncomfortable to be around a person who is sad, and so we stay away until we figure things are better.

Or, we may make ourselves see the person often, and feel we are doing all that we can. Yet we insist on talking, rather than listening—or insist on keeping the conversation bright and cheerful and on any topic in the world but that which is lying heavy on the person's mind and heart.

The same thing happens when a friend loses his job. We dodge him until he has found another, because we are embarrassed by his hard luck.

When we don't avoid those in trouble we are so determined to cheer them up that we aren't sympathetic listeners. We chatter instead.

Yet the one thing a person in trouble wants most is to get that trouble off his chest.

The Enlisted Listeners of London

Lady reading of London is enlisting women whose special duty it will be to listen while bombed-out women talk about their sorrows and troubles.

In explaining why she considers listening to the troubles of others an aid to national defense, she said, "We must realize that people who have come from a bombed area are in a highly nervous state. One of the things that helps them is to be allowed to talk about it."

America isn't in the sad state that Britain is in, but neither are these particularly happy times for most. We all have some friend or neighbor who is having tough going.

So let's give those who need to a chance to talk. Only let's not forget two things: that we shouldn't offer advice or repeat what we learned as "enlisted listeners."

First Adhesive Postage

The Penny Black, first adhesive postage stamp put into government use, appeared May 6, 1840, carrying a likeness of Queen Victoria. Great Britain produced the stamp as the result of a campaign, launched by Rowland Hill, English mathematician, reformer, and schoolmaster, for establishment of a cheap universal postage rate.

the food stamps. There has been no traffic in counterfeit stamps there."

Signs Mean 'Postively'
If you don't believe in signs about "Keep Off the Grass," then keep out of Washington. In two days, 92 persons were arrested for cutting across the patch-work of sickly lawn between some of the government buildings on the Mall. Most persons forfeited their $2 collateral (personal bond). Those who appeared in court, generally saved $1 by getting fined only a buck. One arrested was a Fort Meade soldier. He was turned over to military police and had to go back to camp 28 days before expiration of his leave, which was severest punishment of all. If Washington could find a type of grass that would grow in its top-soilless earth, think how many capital cops could go back to working on crime.

Says 'Free Spain' Group Is Forming

The Spanish civil war has been over two years, but loyalists are still fighting totalitarian "intolerance and bigotry" according to Isabel de Palencia, above, who announced coming formation of "Free Spanish" force similar to Gaule's Free French. The former Spanish minister to Sweden and Finland, now a loyalist refugee, recently arrived in New York from Mexico City.

leader, Mrs. Linus Walker, reading an article from the "Upper Room" followed by a prayer.

The business followed with the collection of dues. Nineteen members responded to the roll call.

Mrs. John Arnold led the program on "Stewardship of Teaching." All members present participated in the discussion.

During the social hours a delicious ice course was served to the members and one guest.

B. and P. W. Club Meets at Barlow On Tuesday Night

The Hope Business and Professional Women's club held their regular monthly business meeting at the Barlow on Tuesday night with Miss Jack Porter in charge of the program.

A lovely arrangement of spring flowers centered the table where covers were laid for eighteen members and four guests, Miss Fannie Mae Canon and Mrs. J. W. Halcorn of Hillsboro, Ill., guests of Mrs. R. T. Bryant.

Mrs. Charles Walker, guest of Miss Hattie Richardson and Miss Wyble Wimberly, guest of Miss Jack Porter.

Miss Wimberly, the guest speaker, is the interviewer for the Arkansas Unemployment Bureau, and gave a very interesting and instructive discussion on "Unemployment Compensation."

Ball-Brunnett Marriage Is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. William Brunnett announce the marriage of their daughter, Marion, to Leo Ball of Little Rock and Hollywood, California.

The ceremony was solemnized on Wednesday, April 2 at the home of the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. Sue Sheridan, in Little Rock. Dr. Warren Johnson, pastor of the First Methodist church of Little Rock, said the impressive rites.

The bride is a graduate of Hope High school and for the past three years has been employed by the Cadco Studio in Little Rock.

Mr. Ball has been in California for the past six years. The young couple are at home in Little Rock temporarily.

Personal Mention

Miss Martha Waddle of Alexandria, Louisiana has arrived in the city for a ten day visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Waddle.

Mrs. Ida Taylor has returned from a two months visit with Mrs. B. W. Talbert in Dallas, Texas and Mrs. Sam Dudeney in Gladewater, Texas.

Miss Enola Alexander will arrive Thursday from the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, for a visit with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Alexander, and other relatives and friends.

H. M. Olsen spent the weekend in the city.

Mrs. Gus Haynes, Mrs. Webb Laster Sr., Mrs. S. D. Cook, Mrs. H. E. Thrash, and Mrs. Albert Jewell are in Hot Springs this week to attend the state W. M. U. convention meeting at the Eastman hotel.

Friends of Alfred Morsani will regret to know that he is a patient in St. Vincent's hospital in Little Rock.

Miss Mary Della White of Arkansas State Teachers college, Conway, will arrive in Hope Wednesday night to spend Easter with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred White.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Williams of Dallas, Texas have returned to their home after a visit with Mrs. Glen Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Bryant.

In a recent election at Henderson State Teachers College, Arkadelphia, Mac Turner, a member of the junior class from Hope, was elected president of the college student body for the coming school year.

Dan Pilkinton, also of Hope, was elected business manager of the Star, the student annual.

A man from a small town attending a convention in a big city took in a strip tease with some of the boys and the next day was obliged to go to an oculist to have his eyes treated.

"After I left the show last night," he explained, "my eyes were red and sore and inflamed."

The oculist examined his eyes, thought a minute and then remarked, "After this, try blinking your eyes once or twice during the show . . . you won't miss much."

Answering the Mail Orders

Soldiers' Pay Is Mostly a Dollar a Day, Plus

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Answering the mail orders:

P. D., Winston-Salem, N. C.—To go into the whole matter of army pay for privates and non-commissioned officers would take more space than this column is allowed, but if the idea is general that $21 a month is every private's lot, it is a considerable misconception. Only privates who have been in the army less than four months or who have shown themselves inefficient or unfit get $21 a month. After that they get $30 a month; $36 if they are privates, first class; $54 if they are corporals; $60 if they are sergeants and so on up to master sergeant, who gets $126 a month.

In addition to that, there are six specialist ratings, such as electricians, clerks, cooks, mechanics and radio operators (and many other skilled workers) who get additional pay ranging from $3 to $30 a month. There also are decorations and awards for which more additional monthly pay is made. Advanced air corps privates and non-coms also get upper bracket pay. I never heard of a rich private, but any lad with aptitude and application can get a pretty decent living out of it when you consider that clothing, sustenance, housing, medical care and a number of other things are thrown in and that entertainment and recreation comes a lot cheaper than you can get it down at the pool hall or at the corner saloon.

K. L. T., Madison, Wis.—The best information I can get is that the first American minister to New Zealand will be one of the department's top-notch career diplomats now in the Far East. Yes, I saw the report that Mrs. Florence Jaffray Harriman might get the appointment, but with out any reflection on Mrs. Harriman's already proved ability, the story around the state department is that nearly all problems arising in the new ministry will be problems concerned principally with the Far East and that some diplomat who knows that section of the world like a book will get the job.

C. E. Springfield, Mo.—You can bet, Mr. E., that Washington talks about a lot of other things than war, lend-lease bills, and so forth. With more than 160,000 government employees and most of them affected from alarm-clock ring until they switch off the lights at night by every move the government makes, there is a lot of talk, but it more often is about the effects than the things that cause them. For instance, I've never been in a city where this is so much talk about housing and rentals.

as there is here right now. The two baby jaguars at the zoo got a terrific ride, as we say in the newspaper. The city still is practically divided into five camps on what caused a street car wreck here a week ago when one car plowed into the middle of another trolley moving at right angles. And more than 75,000 persons in one week visited the new National (Mellon) Gallery of Art which opened only a short time ago.

Mrs. D. R., Duluth, Minn.—Army officials here tell me that there are plans under way to construct more than 600 chapels in the army camps at a cost of nearly thirteen million dollars. Just how much of a program this is for the army may be seen from the fact that in 22 years, the army spent less than $1,000,000 for chapels.

I think I mentioned once before that the army now has 1,200 chaplains and is going to increase the number to 1,500. They include ministers of practically every faith and denomination. Services are to be held regularly in the chapels, with the hours of worship staggered. The chapels will look just about like any 500-seat church in any community, with steeple and all.

"This is the fourth morning you've been late, Rufus," observed the gentleman to his colored chauffeur. "Yassuh," responded Rufus. "Ah, did you sleep mahself ag'in dis mornin' in' suh?" "Don't you ever wind up the alarm clock I gave you?" "Oh, yassuh, Ah winds it up even night, suh." "Then I don't understand why it is you don't get up when the alarm goes off?" "Dat's de trouble, suh. Don't you see, de blame thing goes off while Ah'm asleep, suh."

It won't be long now till we can take off our vest and step out in our spring suit.

The Darkness Deepens

It has been usual to think of the overflowing of the Nazi tide across Europe as a sort of blackout, a darkening of the spiritual lamps which cast light on many peoples. But the details of this blackout as revealed by the Rockefeller Foundation's annual report, are genuinely terrifying. The Foundation, which has extended help to many European institutions of learning, is in close touch with them. There is every reason to believe that the picture it paints is accurate.

The pattern has been followed in country after country. At first the universities and schools are allowed to carry on with their work, under close supervision of both teaching and student activities by Nazi functionaries. Then, gradually, an attempt is made to force on them a "cultural program" similar to that in force in the German universities. That brings resistance from teachers and students accustomed to freedom. Then comes repression, the closing of the universities, the sending of teachers to concentration camps, the breaking up by force of student demonstrations. The Czech universities were closed, and most of their students deported to forced labor in Germany. In Holland, Poland, Norway, and Belgium there has been turmoil and resistance, and such university life as remains is under the strictest Nazi supervision. Over the whole continent, the number of teachers has been reduced at least 50 per cent, the Foundation estimates. The universities lead a precarious and dwindling existence. Soon it will be dark.

Why is this important? Not merely because of the individual tragedies to thousands directly affected, because the science and learning fostered in their universities and institutions was of value to all the people; even those who never stepped on to a campus or through an academic door profited by free academic institutions.

What now? "Knowledge has never flowered in a subject people," says the report. "It is only free men who dare to think, and it is only through free thought that the soul of a people can be kept alive."

Worse than the bombing of buildings, worse than the maiming of bodies, is this deliberate attempt by repression and violence and propaganda, to destroy the soul of peoples.

 4. Does a person of good breeding ever speak against a religion different from his own?
 5. If you would like to go to church with a friend whose religion is different from your own, would it be all right for you to tell the friend?

Answers

1. Yes. Unless the hostess goes to a certain church regularly herself and it would mean that she would have to miss going to her

2. It would be nice to do so, if the clergyman stands at the church door greeting members of his congregation.
3. The woman.
4. No. No matter what he believes he respects the right of others to worship as they please.
5. Yes. Say you would like to go "some time" and let the friend set the time.

Sen. Sheppard Dies Wednesday

Sponsor of Prohibition Amendment Succumbs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, dean of congress in point of service and sponsor of the national prohibition amendment, died Wednesday. He would have been 66 next month.

Dr. George Calver, capitol physician, said death resulted from a slow hemorrhage into the brain at 5 a. m.

Senator Sheppard suffered an intestinal hemorrhage April 4 following several weeks of overwork. He became unconscious later that day but remained at home in care of his physician until Sunday, when he was taken to a hospital.

As chairman of the senate military affairs committee Sheppard was in charge of much important legislation in connection with the defense program.

Sheppard, a Democrat, completed 38 years' service in congress last October 11. He was elected to the house in 1902 to succeed his father, who died during his third term, and entered the senate January 29, 1913.

Special Easter at Hot Springs

Sunrise Service to Be Held on Mountain

HOT SPRINGS—A natural amphitheatre of the great outdoors on the East side of famous Hot Springs Mountain will provide the picturesque setting for this resort's seventh annual special community Easter Sunrise Service Sunday.

Assembled around a rugged cross of huge proportions, a group of highly trained white robed singers and trumpeters will present a program commemorating the Resurrection. The processional will begin at 6 a. m. as the sun rises over the crest of Indian mountain.

The music directors are Mrs. D. O. Sims, chorus and Richard Morris, Jr., brass section and John I. Prosser, KTHS manager, will be the narrator.

This inspiring devotional service is sponsored jointly by the National Park Service, and the Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the Hot Springs Choral Club and the Troubadours.

The singers and trumpeters will each separately convey the story of Easter through themes of joy, victory, worship, glad tidings and the messenger, opening with the processional "Fairer Lord Jesus." "Crown Him With Many Crowns" is the recessional.

"The Angels and the Women" will be sung by a woman chorus.

A number of simple and popular hymns are included in the program in which the directors have invited the worshippers to take part.

SERIAL STORY

DOLLARS TO DOUGHNUTS

BY EDITH ELLINGTON

COPYRIGHT, 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Bee sees the make-believe world she has learned to love crashing. She blames Clarence for calling in police. The morning papers confirm that thought. Anxiously she waits as Toby and Vera read the news. Surely they will recognize her. When they do not, she decides they have known her all the time, that they are just waiting to see what she will do.

BIG IDEA IS STOLEN

CHAPTER XXVI

"WHAT'S the matter with you, Bee?" Vera asked, as Beatrice rose from the table. "Jittery?" There was such matter-of-fact affection in her tone, such serene absence of undercurrent, that Beatrice knew at once she'd been wrong. These girls had not the faintest inkling of suspicion.

She must compose herself! She went into the bedroom, taking the tabloid with her. "Why don't they see?" she asked herself. "There I am, and—she looked into the mirror, "There I am again!"

But something in the mirror arrested her. She examined the face on the front page.

"It is different."

She stared hungrily into the mirror. "I'm thinner, that's what it is. I—I've lost that superior, snobbish look. And—and I'm not glamorous any more."

IN the photograph, she had been finished, assured, the glittering product of a deft hairdresser's art, a superb masseuse, a gifted modiste.

"And now, in this store dress, with my hair all wrong and my chin so pointed and circles under my eyes. . . now I'm just another girl! I haven't had a facial in weeks. I've used up my expensive lipstick. I've given up mascara, lashcream, freshener pads when I lie down. . . Her eyes smarted. "I've changed. I'm not me any more."

She knew a bewildering stab of loss. Then she thought, "Toby's right, it's easy to be beautiful when you have lots of money."

She understood now the savage resentment of the girls in the store against the well-fed, rested, expensively furred customers who swept through the main floor. She understood why they said, "What's that dame got that I haven't?"

No, Toby and Vera had not been blind, this morning. They might have noticed some fleeting resemblance, but probably even that was fantastic. When you looked at Beatrice Huntington Davenport's picture, you simply didn't think of Bee Davis.

"I'm Bee Davis. Just another pretty, hard-working girl. Any girl."

SHE was very silent, going to work with Toby. On the subway, every third person was reading about the kidnaping. Yet no one looked up from the paper to catch a fugitive likeness in the face of the girl across the aisle.

In the store, everybody was talking about the kidnaping. Even Miss Dane joined in. "It just goes to show you, being rich is no bed of roses. I'm glad Mr. Huntington's not alive to go through it. He thought the sun rose and set in that girl."

"Did you ever see her?" Beatrice asked.

"Once, when she was a little girl. He took her through the store. She had on a white bunny coat."

The coat had been ermine. Beatrice remembered it sharply. She'd been 10 years old.

After an hour or two, Budget Fashions settled down to the business of selling dresses. Beatrice waited on customers, and at the back of her mind there was a numbed wonder. Suppose she'd really been kidnaped? Who would care, would really grieve, except Clarence? "And he can always go back to Mimi Frothingham!"

Mr. Weeming might care. He was fond of her, beneath his constant disapproval. "But who else?"

No one. No one at all. The store wouldn't change. It would go right on the way Bruce Sheldrake and the trust company wanted it to go.

"Yet, if I disappeared as Bee Davis—" her eyes sought Anthony's, and he smiled at her over the head of a woman he was talking to. "Why, Bee Davis is more important than Beatrice Davenport! Toby would miss me, and Vera. Even Terry's loathsome wit might fail him, for a while. Miss Dane would care, I know she would! And Getzie. And Miss Ryan."

In six short weeks, she had made a warm place for herself in many hearts. "I had no money, no job, nothing but the clothes on my back. They don't know where I came from, or anything about me. But they like me. They love me."

How wonderful that there were people in the world who could take a lone girl to their hearts, that way! "I was poorer when I was rich," she thought.

BUT sooner or later, if the papers kept on printing pictures, there'd be one picture that must check. Beatrice knew that. Despite the difference, someone must see. "Besides, the government men are searching for me."

They'll trace me. They have ways. They're so clever at finding people!"

She had to call the hunt off. This was her last morning in Budget Fashions.

She looked at Miss Ryan, who must stop work next month. "I'll send her baby clothes and a crib and lots of things."

She looked at Miss Getz. "I'll arrange that pension."

But she grew cold, looking at Anthony. "Will it mean the end of our love? Must it? Oh, how can I explain to him? How can I show him that I had to do it?"

Budget Fashions had never been dear to her, yet, in that moment, she wanted to gather it all up and hold it close to her heart. She wanted to keep all these girls for friends, she wanted to go on listening to the intimate details of their lives, she wanted to be just Bee Davis, another girl like themselves, instead of the heiress who was buying herself what they called an "Italian prince."

She'd never go back to Clarence, no matter what happened! "I don't want to even see him! All I want is Anthony! Oh, how will I tell him?"

AMAN came into the department. A heavy man in a brown suit who stood beside a dummy in a lace dress and surveyed the department with shrewd, narrowed eyes.

"He's looking for me!" The humiliation of being trapped before she ended the masquerade herself crushed her. She shrank behind a rack of dresses. "I must get out of here!"

But Miss Getz, bumping into her, said, "Look at that!" The man had taken out a tape measure.

"They're going to put new carpet down. First thing we know, they'll be modernizing all over. . . Her tone was thoughtful. When they'd modernized upstairs, they'd shove her down here. Now where could she go?

Beatrice squeezed her hand, in an ecstasy of relief. "Don't worry, Getzie."

Anthony was standing at the wrapping desk, watching the men measure for the carpet. Beatrice went up to him. "First I heard about this."

"Yes," he ripped out. "First I heard too. But Miss Dane just explained it. They're redecorating the department so they can use my idea!" His voice was bitter.

"Only, it has been reborn as the merchandise manager's bright little brain child!"

Reviews Road Work in County

Judge Luck Makes Report on 1941 Progress

The following quarterly report on road work in Hempstead county for the first quarter of 1941 was issued Wednesday by County Judge Fred Luck.

"The county roads are in fair condition considering the bad weather we have been having. The major roads have been bladed twice monthly and practically all the second class roads have been bladed once a month. There have been 51 bridges built throughout the county 89 culverts, and a number of others repaired, also 9 concrete culverts which is permanent. We have bladed with the county trucks 1538 yards of gravel for county roads and 155 yards of gravel on W. P. A. projects.

"We are manufacturing concrete pipe to take the place of the wooden culverts and bridges and at this time we have on hand 130 three feet joints ranging in size from 12 inches to 30 inches in diameter.

"We have graded and graveled a number of miles in the Ozan and Benton districts, also a number of drives and parking spaces around the church and cemeteries have been graveled. At this time we are grading and graveled the old Military Road south of Blewins.

Judge Luck cordially invites each interested person to visit our projects and see their speedy and economical way of building and repairing roads with the new and modern equipment purchased since the first of the year.

"We are now ready to construct our warehouse on the lot located back of Fair Park on the Springhill road. This lot was received in exchange with the city of Hope for the lot west of the court house. The warehouse is to store the county and W. P. A. tools and equipment. As we can, improvements are to be made on this lot that will further benefit the county.

"We have tried to fulfill all requests in regard to road construction but if some have been missed they will be taken care of just as soon as the weather permits. Judge Luck wants to also take this means of thanking the people for the appreciation shown him in the road work done in the county."

How to Be Sure Your Seeds Are Safe from Frost

Average Date of Last Killing Frost for Principal Cities. From U. S. Department of Agriculture Weather Reports.

How can the home gardener be sure that what he plants will escape injury by frost? The answer is that he cannot, but he can be reasonably sure, so that only one year in ten will he suffer loss from the weather.

With hardy seeds, he need have little fear. When a variety is designated on the seed packet, or in the catalogue as hardy, the general rule is that it may be sown as soon as the soil can be prepared, and without regard to temperature. When the frost is out of the ground and the earth has dried out sufficiently for spading, then hardy seeds may be sown.

Where the cultural directions say to sow when danger of frost is over, seeds may be sown on the average date of the latest spring killing frost in your vicinity. The map accompanying this article shows what this date is in many localities, and if you are in doubt an inquiry to the nearest weather office will settle the question.

Now, the latest killing frost in spring will vary greatly, and following this advice involves some risk. But experience proves that only once in ten years, are you likely to have frost trouble if you trust in the average date, so far as sowing seeds is concerned.

With tender plants, it is another story. These are likely to be much more tender than seedlings, having been grown under protection; and there is not the same gain in assuming risks with them. Another two weeks under glass will usually do no harm, so it is best to wait until the danger is practically nothing.

To be absolutely sure, wait for thirty days after the average last frost date before you set out tender plants. To be almost sure, wait for fifteen days. If you have a surplus of plants you can assume a slight risk for the advantage of a little earlier start, retaining under protection plants enough to replace any that may be killed by a record breaking late frost, such as comes once in ten years.

There is one class of seeds which do not repay early planting; they are the extra tender vine crops—cucumbers, squash and melons—and the lima beans. They refuse to germinate until the soil warms up, and if the weather is damp and cool, they may decay before sprouting. So wait with them until the soil is warm.

"We had been landing and then taking off again. Finally he stopped the ship, taxied back to the take-off line and climbed out on the wing and gave me some final instructions, to make him three landings and take-offs unless he waved me in after one of my landings. He never waved me in so I made the 'trip around the field' (pattern) to us) and landed after each trip around for three times.

"I landed the third time, taxied up to where he was. He reached up, shook my hand, climbed in the ship and I took the ship over the flight line, got out, filled out 'Form One' and then received the congratulations of the other cadets with as much modesty as I could assume at that moment.

Bulletins

LONDON —(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill warned Russia Wednesday that Hitler "covets the rich Ukraine" and warned his own countrymen that the Nazi threat to Egypt was very "grave."

He announced the fall of Salonika to a stunned House of Commons.

Speaking of Africa—"The Nazis," he said, "despite attacks of British submarines and planes, had shipped a large force of troops to Tripoli, Libya, which commenced to operate even before the route of the Italians at Benghazi was completed."

"We must expect hard and severe fighting for the defense of Egypt," he said.

WASHINGTON —(AP)—Italy demanded the recall of the U. S. embassy's assistant military attaché in Rome in retaliation for the recall of the Italian ambassador to the United States. It was announced Wednesday.

ROME —(AP)—Italy continues to stand guard over the United States embassy, it was reported Wednesday, as rumors circulated that Premier Mussolini might recall his ambassador to Washington because of the "sequestration" of Italian ships in American ports.

MEXICO CITY —(AP)—Official sources said here Wednesday that Berlin and Rome would probably sever diplomatic relations with Mexico as a result of the government's taking over 12 Axis ships in its harbors.

Revival Meet Progresses

Mother's Program Set for Thursday Night

Thursday night will be "Mother's Night" in the revival meeting at the Hope Gospel Tabernacle, conducted by the Rev. Wm. F. McPherson, internationally known evangelist. The Thursday night service will be to mothers, but Pastor J. E. Hamill urged all Hope men to endeavor to hear this unusual sermon.

On Friday night the sermon will be to men. An added feature in this service will be the singing of the Sutton quartet. Wednesday night is Young Peoples Night, and the program will be directed by the Christ's Ambassadors, and will include among many other special selections, the singing of the C. A. quartet.

The congregational singing in all the services is under the direction of S. A. Mays, with Mrs. J. H. Hill in the piano. Services are conducted nightly at 7:30, except Saturdays. The revival meeting will close Sunday night.

a few days of operations by our forces."

"Another France"

ATHENS —(AP)—With the same speed and power which smashed the Allies in northern France a German blitzkrieg division has split Greece in two, but the British apparently have not yet gone into battle.

Nazi mechanized forces drove a wedge into the rugged country west of Salonika cutting off the big Macedonian port and trapping uncounted troops along the Struma river line, although garrisons were holding out grimly in the valley forts.

(London sources said the Germans had cut off the Albanian frontier.)

Off to the northwest Yugoslav soldiers after abandoning Skopje to the advancing Nazis were battling panzer units in the mountains northwest of the town, a Yugoslav communique said.

These forces, the communique said, hoped to prevent the Germans from cutting the country in two. Despite "enormous losses" the Germans were said to have swept past Skopje some 35 miles inside Yugoslavia from Bulgaria to attack Kamenik pass, only 31 miles from the Albanian frontier. (Slovene) Italian official news agency, declared the Germans had broken through Australian and New Zealand troops in the Struma valley but Berlin itself asserted that the Germans had not yet met the British, and a spokesman tauntingly suggested the British were afraid to come out to fight.)

A British military spokesman merely said no British contact had been established with the Germans "nor is there any indication when that contact will be effected."

Flat lands and good roads of the Vardar valley which the Germans took after a surprise dash across southeastern Yugoslavia enabled them to proceed at break-neck speed since dawn toward Salonika.

Outnumbered Greeks were said to be fighting only a delaying action and it was indicated they intended to give up Salonika rather than have it subjected to heavy fire such as destroyed it during the World war.

British Troops Enter Massawa

Claim Eritrea Conquest Virtually Completed

CAIRO —(AP)—British troops have occupied Massawa, chief seaport of Eritrea, virtually completing their conquest of Italian East Africa, the middle east command announced Wednesday.

The Fascist defenders of the Red sea port capitulated Tuesday, a GHQ war bulletin said, and the imperial forces quickly moved in.

With the fall of Massawa the Italians have been routed from all their main bases along the Red sea and Italian coast east and the capitals of Mussolini's three East African colonies are in British hands. They are: Addis Ababa, Ethiopian capital; Asmara, Eritrea; and Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland.

In addition the British have recaptured Berbera, capital of British Somaliland, which the Italians had seized early in the African war.

Wednesday's communique said pursuit of retreating Italian forces in Ethiopia "is being maintained."
